Property Description	Chapel dedicated to St Catherine originally built in the early 16th century, and rebuilt in its present form in 1678. It has a small stepped parvis in front, which is also acting as a levelling platform since the street is sloping. It has a simple façade with two small square windows on each side. Above the corniced doorway is a square window with a stained glass design of the eight-pointed Maltese Cross. In the entablature below the pediment is a coat of arms, above which is a belfry with one bell. The buttressed belfry has an angular pediment topped with a cross. The chapel is currently used a storage space for festa equipment.
